

What you'll do. A 15-minute game played in your project group, on your phones, with one big screen. Your group flies an airship across a small map by talking through questions about presentation skills and by giving one 40-second group pitch. No preparation or app is needed: just a phone with a browser.

Join in 4 steps

1. Scan the QR code on the big screen, or open the web address shown and type the 4-letter room code.
2. Type a nickname.
3. Pick your group number (Group 1 to Group 6). Each group has its own colour and symbol.
4. Sit with your group. The game only works if you can talk to each other.

If your phone drops out, open the link again: you go straight back into your group.

The goal

Reach the Stage as early as you can. Every group can get there. The group with the most points at the end wins.

The rules (all five)

1. Every round, every group moves 2 steps. Do well and you move 3.
2. Moving takes one tap. Your phone shows the best hex in green: tap GO. You can pick a different hex (for example to grab a ★). If your group doesn't choose in time, your ship flies the best route by itself.
3. The group with the most points moves first. Ships never block each other.
4. The map: 🌊 water can't be crossed, so fly around it. A ★ gives 10 points to the first ship over it.
5. You need your own 🔑 key before you can land on the Stage. Your phone shows where it is.

Question rounds (1, 3 and 5)

A presenting scenario appears with four options.

1. Talk first (45 seconds). Say which option you'd pick and why.
2. Agree on one answer, then everyone taps it. You can change your tap until time runs out.
3. If half your group or more picks the best answer, you move 3 steps. Otherwise 2.

There is no prize for being fast, so take the time to discuss.

Plan your 40-second pitch

1. Hook	Start with something that makes us care
2. Clarity	One clear message, no jargon
3. Confidence	Look up, slow down, finish strong

- Open with the problem or a question, not with your name.
- Say one main thing. About 90–100 words is plenty.
- Pause instead of saying "um". Look at the room.

Pitch topics you might get

1. Teach us your best tip for calming nerves before you present
2. Convince us that a slide should show one idea, not ten
3. Show us a boring opening, then turn it into a great one
4. Explain why eye contact matters, while doing it
5. Convince us to rehearse out loud with a timer
6. Tell us how to handle a question you can't answer

Each group gets a different one.

Pitch rounds (2, 4 and 6)

A spin on the big screen picks two groups that haven't pitched yet. Every group pitches exactly once.

1. Your topic appears on the big screen and your phones.
2. 48 seconds to prepare: choose one speaker and plan together.
3. 40 seconds to speak, out loud, to the room.
4. The other groups give you 1–5 stars.

4★ or more: move 4. 3★ or more: move 3. Otherwise: move 2.

When you mark another group

Give 1–5 stars for each of these. Marking earns your group 10 points. You can't mark your own group.

Hook	Did the opening grab you?
Clarity	Was the message easy to follow?
Confidence	Voice, pace and eye contact

Stars: 5★ excellent · 4★ good · 3★ OK · 2★ weak · 1★ not there yet. Mark the pitch, not the person.

How points add up

Each step you earn	10
Marking the pitches · your key · each ★	10 each
Reaching the Stage 1st / 2nd / 3rd / 4th	50 / 40 / 30 / 20

At the end the big screen shows which questions the room found hardest and which pitch skill to work on, and you'll be asked for one thing you learned.

Good to know. The game lasts exactly 15 minutes. Only your nickname is collected, and nothing is stored after the session. Your phone stays silent; sound comes from the big screen.
